Hello and Thank You

By Shirley H. Moreland, CIU Alumni Association Leadership Council President

Any enterprise experiencing leadership transition remembers with much appreciation the benefits of those gone before who served faithfully and is hopeful that those who follow will measure up and make significant contributions to the shared mission. I'd like to pay tribute to Joan Dorman, the outgoing president of the Alumni Association Leadership Council (AALC) and those who served with her: Rudy Oates, Lee Tumey, Paula Berkey and Merle Dye who are rotating off the AALC. We greatly appreciate their time and service to our alumni. The Council also extends a warm welcome to new members-at-large Greg Cunningham ('81), Adam Erickson ('07), Vicki Merritt ('73), Don Sarazen ('92) and Gretchen Wilhelm ('10).

I enter my term of service with a deep desire to contribute positively to the CIU alumni tradition. I view my responsibilities as a sacred trust. In this next season, there will be many practical, common sense issues to be addressed if the effectiveness of the Alumni Association is to increase. Representing the wishes of thousands of CIU alumni scattered around the globe, as well as the Alumni Ministries staff and the leadership of CIU, seems both daunting and humanly impossible. So please keep me in your prayers.

The CIU Alumni Association will be successful if we receive regular, thoughtful feedback from alumni. To put it simply, we need to hear from you. This helps us to serve you in a manner that best provides what you are seeking from us. Brief surveys with a quick turnaround time are most helpful in providing this feedback. We will, in turn, promptly publish the results. Dialogue is more effective than monologue!

Thank you for the trust you have placed in me by your vote to represent you for the next two years. My ability to appropriately respond and influence on your behalf will be directly related to feedback I receive from you, the CIU alumni. I pray that the years of my term will be filled with dialogue and destiny for the ministry and function of the CIU Alumni Association and that you will allow me to speak on your behalf. I look forward to hearing from you and the opportunity to serve!

My door is always open,

Shirley H. Moreland

Thanksgiving Through Honoring Others

Few commands are more frequently encountered in the Bible than for us to be thankful people. Gratitude, thanksgiving, and declaring his goodness is THE attitude that gives weight to our witness, enticement to worship and validates the truth. One expression of thanksgiving is to thank God for one another. Over the past school year, the Alumni Association has given thanks by honoring the testimony of several people. Here are their pictures and a brief description of the honor bestowed. To God be the glory great things He is doing – even in our frail flesh!

Go to <http://www.ciu.edu/alumni/association/alumnihonors.html> for more details and photos.

Alumni of the Year: Each honoree is an “example to the believers” in character, excellence, and in faithfulness to the high calling, “To know Him and to make Him known.”

Cash ('57) and Ann Godbold ('58) are true pioneer missionaries, living for at least 30 years in the Sahara Desert of Niger working with the Tuareg people. Their love for the Tuareg was obvious in their adaptation to the Tuareg ways, dress, food, and customs. Their continuing work, even in retirement, is a strong testimony to the missionary call, and to the Lord's power and grace in their lives. Each of their three married children attended CIU and has served on the African mission field.

Alfred ('64) and Joy Alegria Turner Tuggy ('43, '64) Alfred and Joy served as missionaries for 54 years with the Orinoco River Mission in eastern Venezuela while raising nine children, all who love the Lord and attended CIU.

When they returned to the United States in retirement, they continued their mission work as Alfred wrote a variety of Greek/Spanish reference works. Joy describes herself as a Christian first, then a wife, next a mother, then a missionary, finally a housewife.

Kingdom Impact Honor: The honor recognizes CIU alumni who are faithful examples to the core values of CIU.

Arlene Richardson ('84) founded “Heart Craft” while she and her husband Steve were serving in Indonesia. Through “Heart Craft” unemployed people are taught the marketable skill of sewing exquisite quilts and other crafts. God used Arlene's practical expressions of love to open doors of amazing opportunity, bringing Muslims and Christians together.

Jack Layman ('60) received the Kingdom Impact Honor for his work in advancing the ministry of Christian Education. Truly he is a special gift from God to us and many other Christian educators worldwide.

The Director's Honor: This award is made by the director of Alumni Ministries to honor those who have given support that encouraged and enhanced the effective ministry of the Alumni staff toward all CIU alumni.

Nancy Brown Dare ('51) and Mary Lee Walker ('52) were honored for their faithful commitment and devotion to their classes and to CIU.

WE'LL HELP... DESIGN OR REVIEW YOUR ESTATE PLAN

"Yes, I understand that estate planning is important. But where do I find assistance from a Christian perspective?"

As a steward, it is extremely important that you have an estate plan. God's plan for the distribution of your property at death, and the management of property in case of incompetency prior to death, can only be accomplished through a valid estate plan.

And if you have an estate plan that was completed more than two or three years ago, it is important for you to review your plan to make certain that it is current.

Changes in financial situations, beneficiaries, tax laws, or your desires can make your estate plan obsolete.

To help you begin this process, or to assist you in reviewing your existing plan, our staff has prepared a Guide to Planning Your Estate. Please contact us for your free copy today.

Student Scholarships Vital to Boost Enrollment

Veteran professor Dr. Jack Layman, who just celebrated his 50th class reunion this year, said that he is excited to have the largest freshman classes he has had in years. What good news! Among others, he can thank CIU alumni for this. Last year 956 alumni households participated in the Alumni Project, which has one primary focus – to boost student scholarship funds. Our goal is to have 1,500 households participate!

Take your pick!

This year alumni have three venues to help more prospective students enroll and keep current students in the classroom. You may give to any of these three scholarship venues at <https://www.ciu.edu/impact/givingform.php>. From the drop down menu, select your preference.

1 The Power of One – Contribute to one hour of class, one day of class, one week of class, one month, or even a semester. You just might be helping a student take the very same class that was your favorite!

2 Provide a scholarship gift in honor of President Emeritus Robertson McQuilkin's 83rd birthday by giving in increments of $83. ($83, $166, etc.)

3 Help more African-American students enroll through the new Rev. Dr. Lillie A. Burgess Scholarship. Burgess is a graduate of the CIU Undergraduate School, CIU Seminary & School of Missions and is a former faculty/staff member. She is currently professor of Religion at Benedict College in Columbia, S.C.

Distinguished Faculty/Staff Honor: This honor recognizes outstanding achievement and commitment by a faculty or staff person.

Bob Kallgren has served Christ in so many ways. He received this honor for his faithful service to CIU, his service to other schools through the Association for Biblical Higher Education (ABHE), and his service to his church – Columbia Christian Fellowship.

Honorary Alumni: This honor recognizes CIU faculty and trustees, and others named by the Alumni Association Leadership Council who evidence sustained interest in the work of CIU.

Peggy Lee Manoogian was recognized for outstanding and faithful service to CIU Alumni Ministries and the Music Department. Her tireless work and devotion are an example of how to touch the lives of our legacy alumni.

Joyce Tucker Supplee was recognized for 26 years in music ministry as the choir “business manager.” Her tireless service and devotion to CIU are our example. Her devoted love for her husband Bill and her children is a radiant example to all.

G. William “Bill” Supplee was recognized for 40 years of exalting the Lord through choir direction and music ministry. He models the victorious Recent Alumni Recognition: This honor recognizes young alumni for their service to the Lord.

Laura Story Elvington (‘03) Alumni Ministries made the presentation of the award after Story finished singing her popular worship song “Indescribable” at a concert in May. This recognition, however, is not based on her contribution to the Christian music industry, but is based on her ministry as one who has been called to know Him in order to effectively make Him known.

Downtown Columbia Visionary, CIU Alumnus with the Lord

The Rev. Pete Cannon, a downtown Columbia businessman and local Christian leader, passed away on Aug. 27 from lung cancer. He was 64. Cannon earned a Master of Divinity degree from Columbia International University in 1982, and was probably best-known on the CIU campus for founding HIS International, an outreach to international students at the University of South Carolina. Many CIU students, both undergraduates and seminary students volunteered at HIS International. Pete Cannon will be missed.
